What to expect from the course:

All beings have the inborn ability to communicate with each other. It tends however in us human beings to be submerged beneath layers of cultural education or every-day-life hectic. Many people regard animals as lesser beings on the one hand and telepathic communication as hocus-pocus on the other hand. Neither is the case!

In this course we want to come together to open the door to another dimension of communication with our animal friends and get back in touch with all beings on our earth. We want to ask questions and receive answers of wisdom and understanding. This course will not only teach us to talk to our animal friends, it will also give us a deeper understanding of the world around us and ourselves within it.

What to bring:

An open mind, well behaved animal friends will be welcome.

Be prepared to be touched to the core and changed.

We suggest you read Penelope Smith's book "Animal Talk" to prepare for the course and to get an idea, what you get yourself into.
